

Your Little Environmentalist Will Love Discovering Their Backyard

9 Oct, 2008

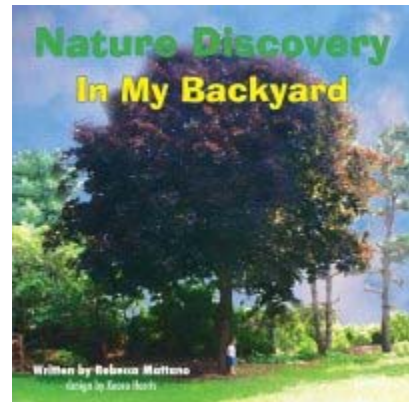

Exploring around the backyard is something that all kids do. The only question is: Do they know what they are looking at?

Nature Discovery In My Backyard is a great book created by a mom, Rebecca Mattano, that will help your child identify some of the cool stuff they find. From identifying different varieties of butterflies and their lifecycle to helping differentiate between a maple leaf and a birch leaf.

Common flowers and birds are explained in a language that your child will understand.

Older kids will also benefit from the Nature Discovery Tips and Nature notes listed at the back.

Win it! The Little Environmentalists are giving away one copy of Nature Discovery In My Backyard to one lucky reader.
